difference ;)

If you stop at this stage, you'll have a very durable and cheap motionless decoy. It won't be shiny like the unflocked dekes! The flock won't rub off (cause there is none), dirt can be brushed away, if all else fails, the sock can be replaced or washed and dyed again...

You can use the regular stick, the feet, or you can cut a cross out of a metal net you'd use in your garden for plants that like to climb... if this decoy is all you want, you don't have to cut the big 1 inch hole into the belly of the decoy (Step2)
